

Everything is your fault—

Every success, every failure, yours to own. To most, Dirac's equation resembles hieroglyphs. Mario-n-Luigi's journey isn't one leap: challenges fuel progress. The struggle—highs and lows—that's the point—no light without darkness. Beauty resides in difficulty.

Einstein failed. Schrödinger attempted...countless others. Dirac united quantum mechanics and relativity. Like planes battling friction-n-headwinds, we persevere. Planes don't take off with wind—they rise against it. THRIVE on adversity!

Diamonds only emerge through extreme pressure. Pressure makes us unbreakable. CRAVE IT! Success favors not the valedictorian but those who manage stress. God's trials aren't punishment—they forge us like blades amidst flames—our chance to prove to ourselves—to honor God.

Dirac's equation—brilliant, not flawless. Overlooking the negative side unveiled positrons: antimatter. Mistakes don't diminish genius—they propel BRILLIANCE forward. You'll stumble—that's essential. Errors ignite growth. Edison failed countless times before illuminating the world. Great successes arise from failures. Nobody's perfect: imperfections radiate beauty. Chase perfection—not to catch it, but pursuit differentiates you. If you're not failing, you're not pushing enough.

We all suppress something. Me? I transcribe right to left—read slowly—but listen at 850 WPM. Spelling aloud? A nemesis. I never sought accommodations—life doesn't grant special treatment. Coffee leaves me drained; I fidget nonstop—each night, I clean my ears on repeat. Difference isn't a flaw; it's your edge. To be EXTRAORDINARY, you can't be ORDINARY. I fear mediocrity—koinophobia: my commandment. My mind? A quantum superconductor—thoughts firing like electrons at near-zero Kelvin. Don't hide your spark.

Those who say they can and can't are both right. I'm giving this speech to the class of 2039...visualized retiring my father with a Ferrari; it happened. Projection is perception—visualize, believe, speak—it manifests.

You don't need greatness to begin, but you must begin to achieve it. Today's joy eclipses yesterday's errors.

A decade ago, I watched others in cars worth more than houses—now, that's me. Repeating 'it's possible' transforms dreams into reality. As Job demonstrated, family; love; health; and God outweigh material wealth: REMEMBER THAT! Negative thoughts scatter focus; positive ones amplify ambition. What you concentrate on materializes. The magic you're seeking is in the work you're avoiding.

Success DEMANDS DELUSION—everything originates in the mind.

Certainty isn't promised. Life assures uncertainty—Heisenberg revealed this. Embrace the unknown! Few succeed...greatest opportunities hide within uncertainty—making the journey worthwhile.

Fear not death; fear an unlived life. Fear's a mile wide—an inch deep.

Particles exist in multiple places until observed—superposition. We exist in superposition: fear and courage; failure and triumph. We choose our path. Uncertainty lingers in what could've been, but no energy changes what is—only what will be.

Dirac didn't dwell on the past—he combined equations—innovating. Glance back, but don't live there. Stare, and you'll stay stuck. The PAST is history; the FUTURE'S a mystery, but today's a GIFT. You can't change yesterday; only now! You can't drive looking in the rearview mirror—It's small to prevent the past's return. The windshield? Is WIDE—the future's open. Bamboo spends five years growing unseen. Then shoots up yards overnight. It wasn't sudden—greatness takes time. Every step—even hidden—lays the foundation for greatness. You might not impress yet—but like bamboo—you're growing. Keep pushing forward! Your next move matters most.

Accept rejection; it's your catalyst. Success is the only revenge! When they shut the door on you—show them the door of your Ferrari. Water is $0.50 at the supermarket—$2 at the gym—$7 at the cinema; go where you're valued. To lead the orchestra, you must turn your back. If you live for the cheers, you'll die by the boos.

There's a version of you who never sleeps in—never skips workouts—never wastes time—and fulfills their potential—wake up—take control!

In 2040, a full-ride scholarship for the best motivational speech—the world belongs to those who can speak. Thank you, class of 2039. Accelerate toward success! Enjoy life...

You're crazy until successful; then a genius. Take the risk or work for someone who did.

Never say you can't; say, 'I haven't yet.'
